Lioness on a Rampage.

[From the New York Pelegram.] One of the most interesting features of the menagerie at Baroum's Hippodrome has been the cleaning out of the dens of the animals. The menagerie includes a number of tions, leopards, tigers, &c. The method of cleaning the cages of these terocious beasts is a thrilling one. A man, armed only with a heavy, shorthandled whip, enters the dee, and lashing its savage inmates into a corner, sweeps the dirty sawdast out through the bars and then straws the floor with a tresh covering. Most of the annuals are very docile, but in the case of the hous the aspect of affairs is altered, in so far that, as the animals are young, exub rantly ferocious not as yet only partially tamed. Chas. White, the fam ous beast tamer, is, in fact, the only person connected with the show who exereises any command over them. Yesterday afternoon he happened to be absent, but his assistants determined to prosecute their work as they had been used to do.

Jack Parker, his chief assistant, entered the eage of the lions at the usual hour and proceeden to clean it out. After the first work was done he slightly op ned the door is order to no ave a tucket of sawdust from a boy outside. At this lustant the largest lioness, a glorious beast, about a year old, made a teap for him, landed on his shoulders and bounded out into freedom, throwtog Parker flit on his face under the door of the cage and stunning him into neignessness. The erowd of lookers on rapidly dispersed at the unexpected appearance of the monster, but us ferceity seemed confined to one object. It made a dead set for the cage of the Bengal tiger, and. e imoing halt up the bars, made streamous eflous to reach the inmate of the den. The two a limais had been kept face to face in their e ges while on the road, and the hatred engendered during that season had evidently been perpetuated. The more the lioness clawed heir to. the more the tiger clawed back, and the sleek coats of the combatants were soon streaked

The cries of the lookers on summoned the officials of the show to the spot, and a messener was disputched for Mr. White. Directly he arrived he made for the liquess-who had apparently satisfied her rage and was simply coned in front of the tiger's cage in an att tude of watchful attention-and seized her by the head. The beast resisted, but made no at tempt to injure any one, and after a short struggle, which enlisted the combined efforts of four men was dragged back into her cage and securely barred in. Orders were immediately given not to attempt a purification of the cages hereafter with less than four men. Mr. Barnum hi uself was present at the occurrence. The harmtess result of the escape is the more remarkable for the fact that the lieness "Zud" has already killed two men and mutilated soveral others, and the only person sole to bring her into any show of subjection is her trainer.

CONFEDERATE ARCHIVES AT WASHINGTON. -At the meeting of the Historical Society, heliat the Montgomery White Sulphur Springs io August, 1873, a resolution was adopted requesting the secretary of the society to com musicate with the Secretary of War at Wash negton in reference to allowing the society access to the Confederate archives collected there. No favorable opportunity presented itself, and the correspondence had not been opened until last November, when the secretary had an interview with the private secretary of General Beiknap, which resulted in a letter from the Secretary of War to the society, in which he gave some interesting facts concerning the Confederate records, and the progress that had been mad towards preparing them for publicati n, assure i us that there was no purpose of mutilating those records, and asked our cooperation to completing his files of Confederare reports and documents. The secretary replied, expressing an earnest desire that all of the contriberate archives should be published, and a readiness to co operate with the Department at Washington; provided they would rediffocate, giving copies of papers in exchange for what they wanted. The Secretary of War did not seem in his reply disposed to accede to the conditions, but it was still hoped that a mutually satisfictory arrangement could be effeeted, when Gen. Belkoap resigned, and the correspondence was broken off.

DECONSECRATION OF A LONDON CHURCH .-What is called a "deconsecration" service was held in All Hallows Church, Bread street, recently, by order of the Bishop of London, preliminary to the removal of the edifice. This chard as one of a large number in the city which were rebuilt after the fire of Loudon by Sir Christopher Wren, and its rector in 1555. Rev. Lawrence Saunders, was burned at Coventry for preaching in defence of the doctrines of the Reformation, and Milton was baytized here to December, 1608. There was a crowded congregation at the service, the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs attending in state, accompassed by one or two Aldermen and Common Councilmen. Bishop Claughton preached the sermen, choosing for a text St. Luke, ix , 59, "Jesus said unto him, Let the dead bury their dead, but go thou and preach the Kingdom of God. While the Bishop was ascending the rupit an eld rly person in the aisle near the d or called out in a loud tone, "I protest against this service to God's name," but had scarcely fluished the sentence ere one of the guardians of the peace appeared on the scene and promptly escorted him to the street.

MAMMOTH SAFE. - On Wednesday last the mammoth burglar and fire-proof safe of the First National Bank of Hanover was placed in position in the room to be occupied by the bank in the splendid new building on Fountain Squar. This sate is of huge prop rtions seven feet in height, five feet wide and four feet deep, and weighing eight tons. It cost $1 500. The work of removing it from the Common, where it had been stored some months ago awaiting the completion of the building for sep 30 E. S. LEADBEATER & BRO. rable difficulty owing to its immense weight, and occupied nearly transfer was witnessed by a large and curious crowd.—
